Dear Parents/Carers,

Throughout the week beginning Monday 11th March, Drifffield Junior School will be celebrating British Science Week using the book 'The Rhythm of the Rain' as our inspiration. We will be kicking off this fun-filled week of science activities with an eventful assembly as well as launching a competition.

The whole school will be igniting their imagination with a range of science and engineering based activities throughout the week.

On Monday 11th March (3.45pm to 4.45pm), DJS science ambassadors will be holding a STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) Festival after school in the school halls for children (any age) and adults to come along and enjoy playing with science. There will be over 20 different activities for everyone to take part in. As part of the STEM Festival, the Little Book Emporium will be in school with a range of books for you to buy. Complimentary tea and coffee will be available too!

To finish off the week, on Friday 15th March we are asking children to come to school dressed as a scientist. Remember, not all scientists wear white coats so think outside the box. Astronauts, explorers, doctors, vets and engineers are scientists too...!

We look forward to seeing you at the science festival.

Rachel Westenby and the DJS science ambassadors
